AN INVITATION TO REBELLION

Marshal Tito grows more daring every day. Already living dangerously, the dictator of Yugoslavia made two speeches recently in which he openly promised to help potential rebels in Bulgaria and Albania overthrow the Stalinist regimes there. He suggested that Russia's satellite countries are ready to follow Tito's lead.

The whole power of the Stalin machine has been mobilized against Tito for months. Formerly he resisted; now he openly defies Russia and the Cominform. He raises again the old pattern of national and racial alignments and boldly talks as if Yugoslavia is willing and ready to fight even Russia.

It should be remembered that Marshal Tito is a Marxist who was trained in ruthlessness in Moscow. He believes in Communist dictatorship, but he and the Stalinists parted company over who should be boss. Tito objected to dictation by the Stalin spies and errand boys; Stalin excommunicated Tito because he would not take orders. As the split widens, Tito poses as the exponent of true Communism against those who have betrayed the gospel of Marx and Lenin.

Marshall Tito shows no disposition to give up despotism. The quarrel between his followers and those of Stalin is like a feud between two sets of gangsters.

As Tito not only challenges the Kremlin but also sets himself up as a rival to Stalin, students of Soviet policy are amazed that blitz has not struck him dead. Stalin is a man who becomes irked easily; it is safe to conjecture that he is infuriated by his old henchman.

Tito has taken the line that the best defense is an offense. He is sticking out his tongue, calling names, inciting the Balkans to revolt against Russia, and embarking on a good neighbor policy with Italy. If the Soviet leaders take no action to counter Tito's revolt, they must be either very sure or very unsure of their position.

Whatever the answer to the iron curtain riddle, Tito's thundering and his appeal to Russia's satellite countries are proof that the Communist world is actually a house divided against itself.

Here's How Hollywood Remembers Will Rogers

By BOB THOMAS
(Second of two articles on Will Rogers—man and legend. Today's concern the man.)

Hollywood, Aug. 16.—(P)—The real Will Rogers has become overshadowed by the legend that has grown in the 14 years following his death.

But the memory of America's "poet laureate" remains fresh in the minds of those who worked with him in the movie industry.

"He wasn't an actor," says one. "He was something greater than that—a philosopher."

"He was a shrewd man under that shy exterior," says another. "He knew people liked him folksy and plain, and he kept himself that way."

"He would stroll through the commissary and stop to chat with anyone," says another. "He always sat in the northwest corner of the place and Shirley Temple, Warner Baxter, and Henry King had the other corners."

He was a millionaire who used to eat chili and raw onions for lunch. Lew Borzage, brother and assistant to Frank Brozage, who directed Will's first talkie, recalls how Irene Rich once asked Rogers to lay off the onions.

"Ate His Onion, Anhow!" "We're doing a close scene this afternoon," she pleaded. That day he had a whole onion for lunch.

The studio built him a fancy western dressing room, but he hardly set foot in it. He could often be seen sitting in his car on a studio street, hunt-and-pecking out his newspaper column.

"All I know is what I read in the papers," he said, and he read plenty of them to find news to comment on. He could recall an insignificant news item that had been printed months before.

"Like many comedians, he was not very funny when he wasn't on," says an intimate. "He had a fabulous memory for facts, which made him seem like an ad libber. It's the same knock Bob Hope and Milton Berle have today."

Didn't Like Close-Ups Rogers disliked close-ups. "Give 'em to the girls," he'd say. "Nobody wants to look at this homely pan." Likewise he was a difficult man to hold still for a photograph, and he was no favorite with lensmen and reporters. He was a difficult interview.

He could knock the famous, as when he said about President Coolidge: "I never knew a Vermontor to do any tremendous amount of worrying on $75,000 a year," but he never picked on anybody small. He liked to finish his pictures ahead of schedule, and he'd pay the day-by-day workers what they lost by finishing sooner.

At 4:30 in the afternoon, he began twirling his lariat nervously on the set. At five, nothing could keep him from heading for his canyon home and his family.

He once gave his secret of success as "gum and gumption." But to most of his countrymen it was because of his warm, human touch that sprang from the heart of the nation. And because of a humor such as that contained in a dispatch from the land that claimed him in death:

"The governor of Alaska is a Democrat, but a gentleman. Eskimos are thicker here than rich men at the save-the-constitution convention."

Boyle's Column

By Ed Creagh
(For Hal Boyle)

New York, Aug. 17.—(P)—These may be dog days but the dogs are dogging it.

There hasn't been a grade A, all-dolled-up-with pictures dog story in the papers since Hector was a pup.

And this (you should pardon the expression) is a doggone shame.

When I was breaking into the newspaper business, shortly after the battle of Chickamauga, a wise if watery-eyed old city editor told me: "Bub, if you want people to read what you write, remember this: 'One weather story equals two society divorces, and one good dog story will beat any weather story that ever came down the pike.'"

This worthy man later died of a pickled liver, but his advice still seems sound to me.

Aren't Cooperative The only trouble is, the dogs aren't cooperating.

Cats get into the news. So do elephants and monkeys. Even fish are splashing their way into the headlines, to say nothing of some publicity hungry birds that have been loitering hopefully around newspapermen's hangouts.

Old Brick Sewer Causes Cave-In On West State

A barricaded section of pavement on West State street directly in front of the court house was opened up Tuesday morning by employees of the sewer department, who found a crater between seven and eight feet deep and nearly as wide. The wash-out is believed to have resulted from collapse of the old brick arch sewer in that location.

Supt. John W. Baptist of the sewer department barricaded the spot Monday when the pavement sagged and dangerous crevices appeared in the pavement. Continued use of the pavement would have resulted in a break-through.

Sewer department workmen probed into the deep well-like hole, which extended back for some distance from the sag in the pavement. Supt. Baptist recalled that a similar wash-out occurred at the intersection of State and West streets about a year ago.

The brick sewer underlying State street is believed to be from 80 to 90 years old. It is constructed in the form of an arch, similar to the old North Church street sewer which was replaced less than a year ago with a modern sewer.

The cave-in will be repaired this week and the pavement patched.

Uncover No New Source Of Water For Jerseyville

Jerseyville—The State Geological Survey is completing its work in the Otter Creek township vicinity which it has been conducting in conjunction with the search for an additional water supply for Jerseyville.

The present summary of the survey reveals that the water level of the locality is some six inches lower on a whole than it was a few years ago. The survey had hoped to establish the location of a water bearing gravel bed in this part of the state, but up to the present time the search has resulted in defeat.

It has been pretty well determined by engineers that the present Union Forest springs water supply is mostly of a local nature and draws the water from an eight to ten miles area.

City Health Commission Clarence Pickrel stated that the present season of abundant rainfall in this locality has been a life saver for the water system this year. The amount of water consumed in Jerseyville has mounted steadily and the pumps are required often to operate as much as sixteen hours a day to meet the demand.

Come see this Stunning New Buick SPECIAL—big in room, big in valve-in-head straight-8 power, easy to manage in size and price

Yes, we know it looks like a lot more money. That stunning new front end—those graceful, tapering fenders—those bigger interiors and high-visibility windows add up to a car you'd expect to wear a pretty fancy price tag.

But come in and see for yourself how right we were when we said this new beauty was priced right down your alley.

Come try the comfort-patterned seats, handle this easily managed wheel, lift the hood and see the bonnet-filling valve-in-head straight-eight power plant you command, measure the shorter bumper-to-bumper length.

Then do a little hard-boiled matching-up of price tags.

In particular—compare this beauty with the sixes—and ask yourself why you should pay for straight-eight power and not get it.

You have, remember, three smart body types to choose from—the tidy, three-passenger Coupe shown here, a neat 2-door, six-passenger Sedan and a smart 4-door Sedan with the roomiest interiors ever found in a Buick SPECIAL.

They're going fast, as you might expect. Getting a firm order in is a smart move just to insure early delivery.

Married In Evening Rites

MR. AND MRS. PETER WILLIAM PALMER

Melba Potter Becomes Bride Of Peter Palmer

Beautiful evening rites Sunday at eight o'clock in Grace Methodist church united in marriage Miss Melba Corrine Potter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Y. Potter, Mount Road, and Peter William Palmer, son of Mrs. C. K. Carlson of Rochester, N. Y., and the late C. H. Palmer.

The vows were received by Rev. W. W. Cutlip, friend of the family, before an altar of ferns, palms, white gladioli and snapdragons, arranged amidst a setting of branching candelabra.

Musical Prelude

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. W. R. Bellatti presented an organ recital, "The Saint Anne's Fugue" by Bach. Miss Mary Helen Potter, sister of the bride, sang "Lord Jesus, Be Present Now" and "In Thee Is Gladness." The Choral Prelude was then played by Mrs. Bellatti, followed by "O, Perfect Love" by Miss Potter. Mrs. Bellatti played Franc Adagio and finished with the traditional wedding marches.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gown in ivory satin, fashioned with a tight bodice beaded with seed pearls. Her bouffant skirt ended in a full court train. A beaded tiara held her veil of imported French alencon lace. Her bouquet was of white roses with a white orchid.

As maid of honor for her sister, Mary Helen Potter wore a gown of turquoise taffeta and carried a nosegay of orchid gladioli. Mrs. Carman Y. Potter, sister-in-law of the bride and Miss Judith Palmer, sister of the bridegroom, were the bridesmaids. They wore yellow and orchid taffeta, respectively, and carried matching nosegays.

Brother As Best Man

Carman Y. Potter, brother of the bride, was the best man. The ushers were Raymond Herring, Robert Reid and Joseph Giangreco, cousin of the bride, and William Perisho of Paris, Ill.

The candlelighters were Miss Ruth Holden of St. Louis and Mrs. Joseph Giangreco. The ring bearers were Loretta Engel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Engel, and Dianne Donaldson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Donaldson. The bride's cousins, Billy Swaby, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Swaby, and Larry Littler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Littler, served as train bearers.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Potter wore a gown of pale blue over lace satin, with matching purse and white gloves. The bridegroom's mother chose beige lace over taffeta with matching accessories. Both had orchid corsages.

Leave For Bermuda

A reception at Ann Rutledge hall, MacMurray college, followed the ceremony. The couple then left on a wedding trip to Bermuda, after which will be at home at 672 Lake Road, Webster, N. Y.

Among the out-of-town guests attending the ceremony were Rev. and Mrs. W. W. Cutlip of Streator; Mr. and Mrs. Holden and daughter of St. Louis; Rev. Floyd Nelson of Kansas, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Krell of Springfield; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Jewsbury and family of Franklin; Mr. and Mrs. Phil Scholfield of Moline, and Dora Lee Clorves of Chicago.

AROUND THE BEND WAS A GOOSE

Livingston, Mont. —(P)— Boyd Engles reports he was fishing the Gallatin river when he flipped a black arat fly around a bend hoping for a blindstrike from a trout.

He got the strike—from a Canadian goose which grabbed the lure, flew when it saw Engles but spit out the hook before the startled fisherman had to worry about the technique of landing a henker.

EXPENSIVE MALAYA WEDDINGS DEPLORED

Kuala Lumpur, Malaya—(P)—The Malay mothers-in-law are to blame. So insists modern-thinking Malays who are trying to break down the conservative tradition that brings bankruptcy to a family when one of the children gets married.

The Malay wedding, even in the most impoverished kampongs (settlements) of Malaya, cost upwards of $2,750. And its hidebound mother-in-law who demands that traditions be upheld even if it cripples family finances to the extent that houses have to be mortgaged says the Penang branch of the United Malay National organization.

THAI WOMEN ASSAULT POLYGAMY

Bangkok—(P)—How can Thai (Siamese) women be considered as having equality with men when the males are permitted to have more than one wife? So asked Nang Nantaka Suprabhatnadan, former chairman of the Women's Law Association, amid the cheers of the Thai Women's Association.

The woman attorney said Thai women legally have equal rights but nature and tradition militate against attainment of this equality. She said it probably would be impossible to pass a law to change the marital situation, but it was fortunate that the cost of living these days obstruc most men from having more than one wife.

The law recognizes three types of Thai wives: legally registered, semi-wife and servant wife. Women have the right of divorce, she commented, but she did not favor use of this legal weapon except in extreme cases. Nang Nantaka also criticized the law that gives the husband power to handle his wife's property. She said women who had their own careers outside the home should be allowed to manage their own property.

THE STORY: Gaynel Teare, breadwinner of a once well-to-do family which is now reduced to moderate means, is expected by her family eventually to marry Barry Bainbridge, a young millionaire. But Gaynel has met an interesting young man who is not a millionaire. Barry knows Gaynel has been seeing Fritz Freeman and Barry has asked Gaynel to marry him. Gaynel, uncertain, has promised to think it over. Meanwhile, Gaynel's mother Emily is wrapped up in her latest fad—the little theater movement.

"Look!" Gaynel broke in. "Mother's beckoning. She wants us to come on in. I know you'll excuse us, Mr. Thornblow!" She smiled at him and took Fritz by the arm.

"You're terrible," she told Fritz as soon as she could. "You're really a nasty man. I shan't let you stay, or introduce you to another person, Fritz, if you can't be sweet."

"But I was being sweet," he protested, as she dragged him along. "And helpful."

"YES, that's right," Emily caught his last word, giving them each a fleeting, vague smile of welcome, symbol of all that she had on her mind. "We need help. We want everyone to help. Dear me, I had no idea things could be so confusing . . . my poor nerves. We're about to begin the rehearsal. As soon as everything's ready. . . . On, there you are, Melvin! Are you sure those steps won't fall down?" It would be frightful if I were to break an ankle or a leg or something and have to hobble about on crutches the night of the performance."

"You won't be on crutches," Melvin said severely. He looked grimmer and dirtier than usual and he kept running his long fingers through his long hair.

Fritz volunteered to test the stairs and while he walked gingerly on them, Barry dropped in from his home next door.

The stairs held Fritz's 180 pounds. They even permitted him to trip up daintily, in the manner of a ballet danseuse, then to thump down heavily in imitation of the wolf approaching the door, or the villain in the piece.

"Isn't he too cute?" Miss Pierce remarked ecstatically.

Barry glanced from her to Gaynel. "Do you wish, Gaynel, that I had been born cute?"

"Heaven forbid," Gaynel said. "You're not the type, Barry dear."

MELVIN pounded for quiet now. He told each player to be ready with his script. The rest found theirs or squatted on the floor. Fritz sat on one side of Gaynel, Barry on the other. Punch and Judy crawled over to curl up in her lap and go to sleep.

"I think we'll start with the scene in the second act where the young country girl—that's you, of course, Miss Pierce—talks with the city boy. Give me the line. . . . Have you the script for cues, Miss Cupples?"

Melvin rapped again for silence. They began the scene.

After they had gone over it three times, Gaynel said, "Why, it wasn't bad!" She really had been amazed at Melvin. He seemed to know what he was about; at least the effect he wished to obtain.

"He's got something," Gaynel said. "If he could invest it into all of them. . . . Even Miss Pierce fits her part. It's too bad, though, she's so pleasantly plump. Isn't it supposed to be slender and alluring?"

Fritz said, "I'm surprised at the illusion footlights can create. She won't look nearly so stout from a distance."

Melvin rapped for order again. Now they were to go through the Big Scene. Where the husband chokes the Other Woman.

"The Eternal Triangle is always good—and interesting," Barry said. He looked across Gaynel to include Fritz, signifying that he inferred a personal significance by his remark.

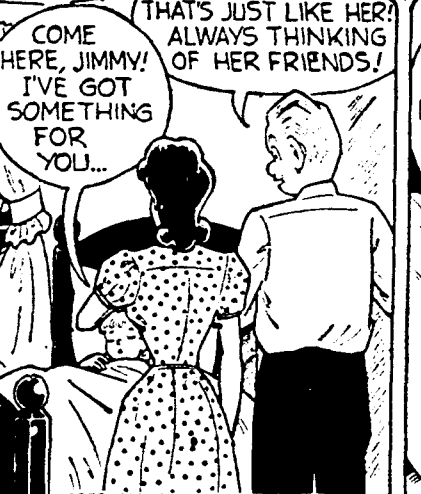

"There's nothing I like better than competition," Fritz said. "Providing, of course, it's clean, fair and unbiased."

Reports Congress To Decide Quickly On US Barge Lines

Washington, Aug. 16—(P)—Deteriorating equipment of the Federal Barge Lines may force a quick congressional decision on whether the barge line shall be continued or abandoned, Senator Myers (D-Pa.) said today.

Myers heads a Senate commerce subcommittee considering legislation to authorize an additional $18,000,000 in capital stock for the inland Waterways Corporation, the federal agency which operates the barge lines.

Myers called a subcommittee meeting today to consider the bill, but he told reporters there was no action because of new information received that barges are deteriorating to the extent that cargoes cannot be insured.

E. R. Jelsma, a committee aide, said the committee had hoped to postpone a decision on the line's fate for a year pending completion of an overall study of the country's transportation facilities.

However, Myers said, since a pending appropriation bill would allow the corporation only $1,000,000 and repairs would cost double that, a delay seems impossible.

Virginia Kiwanis Discuss Community Projects Recently

Virginia—At the regular meeting of the Virginia Kiwanis club held at Legion hall on last Monday evening, considerable time was given to discussion of community projects.

One of the projects considered of major importance was clearing of the bottleneck in auto traffic adjacent to the high school grounds. It is thought that construction of a road around the school building with an approach to the street on the north would be helpful in clearing up the traffic jam that is great on Morgan street when a large number of cars are leaving about the same time.

Another project is the grading of the athletic field at the high school to make a suitable field for softball and baseball. To carry out these projects the cooperation of the public will be needed. It was reported that the Junior Chamber of Commerce is working on the lighting of the field. President Paul E. Young selected a committee to cooperate with the Junior Chamber of Commerce on these projects. Members of the committee are Jack Haywood, Lee Tanner and A. W. Morse.

Two new members, Lee Tanner and Dave Finney, were welcomed by President Paul E. Young of the local club.

Eighteen counties have been grouped under Local Board Group 6 at Springfield.

West Central Illinois Cooks, Farmers, 4-H Exhibits Win At Fair

Livestock, produce and culinary exhibitors from west central Illinois are playing a dominant part in the 1949 Illinois State Fair.

Some visitors Tuesday said it was the best fair in their memory; others said they liked it better when there were "kids and crowds." Attendance, slim since the exposition's opening, fattened up considerably Tuesday and there are prospects of a rather full attendance Wednesday and especially Thursday, when the Democrats take over.

The Hayes of Franklin, Miss Opat and Mrs. Lola, are again winning blue, red and white ribbons, plus substantial amounts of premium money, with their canned goods, preserves, breads, cookies, etc. Mrs. Bernice Pattillo of Ashland furnished strong competition to all other culinary experts of Illinois.

Rolls And Soap

Mrs. Ivan Petefish of rural route 3, Jacksonville, broke into the blue ribbon class by baking the best Parker house rolls. She later showed a rather unusual change of pace by taking third place with two half-pound bars of cold process home made soap.

The local swine breeders showed their choice specimens Tuesday during a busy day at the hog barn. H. Y. Pelter & Son took several ribbons with their Durocs; C. O. Anderson & Sons showed their Poland Chinas. On Monday Dodd & Wilson, Virginia, Spotted Poland China breeders captured a blue ribbon with their senior bar. Second place went to Herschel W. Caruthers of Waverly. Spots shown by Bernard Fulton of New Berlin and Carl L. Rieck & Son of New Berlin also collected important ribbons.

Mule Show

David Dodds of Virginia is in charge of this year's mule show, which was held Tuesday. Compared to the turnout of 20 years ago or so, the turnout was small and few of the entries showed any collar or harness marks.

R. D. Lemons & Son of Carrollton have entered some of their Hampshire hogs. They have already scored in the barrow awards for 1949, winning third, sixth and eighth place ribbons.

The Duroc barrow show was completely dominated by Lehman Farms of Pleasant Plains. John McMurray of New Berlin took eighth with a heavy Duroc barrow.

Win With Steers

Winners in the junior steer show not previously reported in the Journal-Courier included Francis Davis of Jerseyville, third, yearling Hereford heifer; Robert Beatty of Jerseyville, eighth, Hereford steer over 875 pounds; Tom Frank of New Berlin, seventh, Angus steer under 875 pounds.

The Daysford Farm Hereford herd of Manchester holds No. 1 position in the first cattle barn. The proprietors, the Andras Brothers, will enter eight head in Hereford show to be held in the coliseum Thursday.

Red Cross Will Help Vets Apply For Dividends

Application forms for the special dividend on National Service Life insurance authorized by the Veterans Administration will be available at the Morgan County Red Cross chapter office on or after August 29.

The dividend is not automatic, and each veteran must fill out one of these application forms. In general any veteran who kept his National Service Life insurance in force for three months or more will be eligible to receive a dividend.

The exact amounts which each policy-holder will receive are not known at this time. The Veterans Administration will determine that before the first of the year when the first dividend payments will be made.

Veterans should not write to the Veterans Administration about their dividends. This will only cause delay in payment. The veteran should not communicate with the Veterans Administration on this matter except to send in the application form. If he has questions about the form or about his eligibility, the Home Service Department of the Red Cross will do its best to advise the veteran.
